Italy's Music with Spaghetti Soothes Boyle

By HAL BOYLE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

ROME, April 10—In Italy they beat you over the skull with culture and make you learn to like it.

You come into a restaurant looking for hamburger and a quiet corner in which to wolf it down and they assault you with Verdi, Rossini, Bellini, Mascagni and other local and foreign musical long hairs.

By the time the evening is over, you find you are beginning to like the darn stuff.

Hal Boyle

The trouble with all art, music and other assorted bargain counter cultures in America is that they try to cram them down your throat in high school while you are either writing a brief 10 page love note to the gal in the next row, or wondering what the cafeteria will have for lunch.

Part of Lives

Here they teach you in a soft, beautiful and offhand way that makes music, art and literature as much a natural part of these emotional people's lives as food and love and work and sleep are in America. In Italy—sad, sorry, poverty-ridden, glorious Italy—they follow the precepts of Aristotle, or the Greeks whose wisdom humanized the Romans, and breathe music as their lifetime solace.

They gave me my first serious lesson in music tonight in a small restaurant in the Via Frattina. My teachers were three among Rome's hundreds of cafe musicians.

Because we were Americans and they knew we were good for a few lire they first played in limping greeting such tunes as "In the Mood" and "I Can't Give You Anything but Love Baby."

But once we applauded they began to bend their violin, guitar and mandolin double with old favorites that never meant quite so much in music appreciation courses back home—"The Poet and Peasant Overture" "Drigo's Serenade, "Barber of Seville," and arias from the opera "Rigoletto."

No Top Hats There

Of course this is all "freshman music" to erudite people who can tell you offhand whether Sibelius scratches out his compositions with chalk or fountain pen. But they put a rest to their job that was unforgettable in that spaghetti arena where one carbide lamp was kept lit in case the electric age went on the blink.

And, without a revolving stage or a bronchitic tenor they made Verdi sound more real than he usually does as played before a white shirted stuff shirted audience. They made a handful of violin more important than an underdone porkchop. And to one musical illiterate that helps explain what Italy lives by more than the guide books or UNRRA's first annual report.

Feed Your Dog as Many Famous Breeders Do
"... meets all requirements"
Mr. C. L. Rhodes, owner of Lakeside Greyhound Kennels, Route 2 J. Joplin, Missouri, says: "I have never had a dog food that starts my puppies on as sturdy growth as Kellogg's exo-pup. It meets all requirements in my kennel as a basic food for dogs of all ages."
MOST breeders and veterinarians use and recommend a foundation diet of good dry dog food fed with scrap meat, including fat. So many feed Kellogg's exo-pup because it provides all the vitamins and minerals dogs are known to need for growth and vigor.
Kellogg's exo-pup is thrifty. And dogs love its hearty, meaty flavor.

S. LAUNCHES ACE DRIVE

s Plans April 25 Paris ay; Argentina Favor Again Sought.

The Associated Press

SHINGTON, April 10—The States threw its diplomatic ay behind a drive to e for much of Europe y for the Americas. brief, is the situation:

pe — Barring unexpected ents, Secretary of State meet in Paris April 25 gn Ministers Molotov of vin of Britain and Bidault of France in a critical session which may determine when the projected, 21-nation European peace conference can begin.

At stake in turn are final treaties which will permit full restoration of sovereignty to the European countries once allied with Nazi Germany—Italy, Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary and Finland.

Americas—This country, in effect, is extending the olive branch to Col. Juan D. Peron, Argentina's "strong man" and president-elect. The gesture is a bid to end two years of intermittent bickering and restore hemisphere solidarity, backed up by a Pan American defense treaty.

To Work on Deadlock

Byrnes disclosed these new developments at a news conference late yesterday.

He announced that Molotov and Bevin had accepted his suggestion that Big Four foreign ministers meet in Paris some two weeks hence in an effort to break the present deadlock over drafts of proposed peace treaties. Bidault is expected to follow suit.

Then Byrnes issued a statement which said the United States would "welcome" Argentina's participation in the Pan American defense treaty if the Peron government would fulfill its hemisphere commitments, including its pledge to eliminate "Axis influences."

Small Fry Stalemated

Persons close to Byrnes said he considers the approaching Paris trip one of the most important missions he has ever undertaken.

The deputy foreign ministers, who have been working on treaty drafts in London for two months, appeared stalemated on such touchy issues as the Italian-Yugoslav boundary dispute and disposition of the former Italian colonies.

Those matters apparently will have to be disposed of at the Big Four Paris meeting if they are to be resolved at all.

Senate Seeks Atom Formula

Trys To Protect Secrets Without Hampering Control Discussion.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 10—Eleven senators buckled down Tuesday to the task of erecting a legal fence around atomic energy secrets without raising a barrier to discussing of domestic control policies and administration.

Chairman McMahon (D-Conn) described this as the "most difficult job" his special atomic energy committee has had to tackle.

The committee is working on the draft of a domestic control bill which would permit a proposed commission to prescribe "such regulations governing the dissemination, publication, transmission and communication of, and the unauthorized acquisition of, information relating to atomic energy as the commission deems necessary * * *." Presidential approval would be required to put the regulations into effect.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich), a committee member, said an effort would be made to revise this and other sections of the bill to chart as clearly as possible the exact area in which the dissemination of information would be barred.

As the measure stands, "willful" violations of the commission's regulations would be punishable by a maximum $10,000 fine and five years in jail. Violations made with intent to injure the United States or aid a foreign nation would have maximum penalties of $20,000 fine and 20 years in jail.

The Michigan senator said he does not interpret the information control sections of the bill as barring legitimate criticism of operations or policies of the proposed commission.

The pending bill says the dissemination of scientific and technical information "should be permitted and encouraged so as to provide that free interchange of ideas and criticisms which is es*sential to scientific progress.*"

It proposes that information on the use of atomic energy for industrial purposes "be shared with other nations on a reciprocal basis as soon as effective and enforceable international safeguards against the use of such energy for destructive purposes have been established."

Swing Man Blows Up Basin St.

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS, La.—When New Orleans' son of swing, Louis Prima, returned for a hometown engagement, he made a sentimental journey to Basin St., the inspiration for his musical success.

New Orleans understands, more than any other city, the inspiration for the Prima vocals, and when he jitterbugs with his trumpet the audience shouts with glee.

Between local appearances, Prima rummaged about the cobblestone streets of New Orleans, recalling how he got his start under the influence of Basin St. and its ragtime traditions. He began music lessons at the age of eight—on a violin. But by the time he was 12, his hands were so big, he switched to the trumpet. At 15, he had his first band.

Prima went to New York with a quintet in 1934 and by 1940 he had formed a 17-piece band.

The Basin St. man found the key to the big time in a book. He put the story to music and added lyrics tailored for his warm style of comedy singing. It became a sensation and now every place Prima plays the most requested number is "Robin Hood."

"My engagement at the Astor Hotel in New York in March 1944 started me up the ladder," the trumpet man says. "Since my band was in demand, I wrote the lyric of 'Angelina' and featured it with 'Robin Hood.' Then came 'Pleez Don't Squeeza Da Banana.' My next song, which I'll soon record, is 'Little Boy Blew His Top'."

Success hasn't made him forget the hard knocks he took while playing around the South in the early thirties with his brother, Leon, and guitarist Frank Federico, who is still one of his featured men.

His boyhood idol was Louis Armstrong, New Orleans' own Satchel Mouth. "I always liked Louis Armstrong's style," says Prima, "and I tried to imitate him."

Now Prima sets the pace in his own way.

Sen. Taft Proposes Huge Gift to Britain

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 10—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) proposed today a $1,250,000,000 gift to substitute for the $3,750,000,000 British loan.

Taft said he had no doubt that the senate banking committee would approve the loan-authorizing legislation today. But he added he would offer his substitute when the measure reached the senate floor, possibly next week.

Taft contended that $1,250,000,000 of the $3,750,000,000 proposed British loan represented deficits the British expected to have in their trade with this country this year and in 1947 and 1948. He said the remaining $2,500,000,000 would finance British settlements of British trade deficits with other countries in the so-called "sterling bloc."

Propose Game Law Changes

Recommendations in Ohio game laws were made at a meeting of the Marion County Wildlife Conservation committee last night in the common pleas court room of the court house.

Changes asked for will be taken to a meeting of the Fifth Conservation district to be held in Columbus early this summer where final recommendations will be consolidated and finally presented to the state conservation commission.

Briefly the recommendations made by the committee last night were as follows 1. Establishing a uniform squirrel season throughout Ohio, starting on Sept. 22 and running up to 15 days depending upon the desires of individual districts; 2. Shortening the rabbit season to run from Nov. 15, to Jan. 1; 3. Changing the duck season so that Ohio will fall into the intermediate zone instead of the northern zone, thus making the season open later when there are more ducks in Ohio; 4. Continuing the fox bounty for the present fox law which provides that fox may be killed in any season. The present law expires on March 31, 1947; 5. Changing the trapping season to open at 12 noon instead of 6 p m on the opening day to enable trappers to have their traps set before dark.

The committee also studied the other Ohio game laws and recommended they continue unchanged. They included the pheasant, Hungarian partridge and grouse seasons, the raccoon, mink, muskrat, opossum and skunk laws and the deer season.

The committee reelected John Jolley of Marion as its chairman and Floyd M. Peters of near Marion was elected secretary succeeding Ronald Selanders of near Marion. Kenneth A. Robinson of Marion was appointed as the committee's sportsman representative and Wallace Lynn of near Marion as the committee's farmer representative to the district meeting.

Meeting with the committee were Roland Brown, assistant district supervisor for the Ohio division of conservation and natural resources, and O. H. Neimeyer, Marion county game protector.

SAN ANTONIO, April 10—Northern-born and northern-reared General Jonathan M. Wainwright today became the first Yankee ever accorded an honorary life membership in the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

To carry precedent shattering a step further, at the same time became the second resident from north of the Mason-Dixon line to receive the S.C.V. distinguished service medal, the highest decoration of the order.

JAP COURT PONDERS OVER WHAT TO CALL EMPEROR

Candidate Charged with Calling Hirohito "That Guy."

TOKYO, April 10—Japanese judiciary, which has been pussyfooting carefully through interpretations of civilian rights in occupied Japan, has been brought up short with the question: "May the emperor be referred to as 'that guy?'"

Likewise puzzling are the questions May the empress be called "that guy's wife" and the crown prince a "brat?"

Kyodo news agency reported the royal family had been so termed by Kenichi Ito, Communist candidate for the diet, in a campaign speech.

A shocked police official heard the references, Kyodo said, and asked the public prosecutor for a ruling. The prosecutor asked the supreme court, and the court, with no one to ask, is pondering.

OPA Lifts Controls on Variety of Items

WASHINGTON, April 10—The office of price administration has removed price controls from several hundred items which it described as for personal, household, office and professional use.

Items range from fly swatters and canes to hypodermic needles and syringes, sofa pillows, soda fountains and dentures.

Controls were removed from "gang and power lawnmowers" but not from the ordinary householder type of mower, and were taken off "ladders (except step ladders)."

In another order, OPA took price controls off electrical machine tools, processing machinery, construction equipment, transportation equipment and miscellaneous items.

U. S. OKAYS SUBSIDY FOR MEAT PACKERS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 10—The government yesterday authorized payment of approximately $10,000,000 in additional subsidies to meat packers.

Stabilization Director Chester Bowles announced he was approving such payments in order to "bridge a six-weeks gap during which wage increases could not be covered by subsequent price increases."

A packing industry wage increase of 16 cents hourly retroactive to Jan. 26, was approved by the wage stabilization board on Feb. 28, but offsetting price increases did not become effective until six weeks later.

The additional subsidies, Bowles said, "will help slaughterers absorb the additional costs of the Jan 26-March 11 period when prices remained at previous levels."

He said payments will be made only to those packers who carried on active operations during the six weeks period, who maintained normal production to the extent livestock was available from Feb. 26 to the date of application for the special subsidy, and to those who make the increased wage payments prior to April 25.

Vic Donahey

ACCORDING to the rule that ability in politics is gauged by the highest office held, Vic Donahey would be remembered as an Ohio senator during the era of Democratic power under Franklin D. Roosevelt.

But most Ohioans will reject the rule, preferring to remember the qualities that made "Honest Vic" Donahey a three-term governor in this state when Democrats had to pull their votes the hard way. His senatorship was an anticlimax in one of the most extraordinary triumphs of political astuteness Ohioans have witnessed.

His career as governor and later as one of his party's wisest heads has been studied admiringly by many, always with the same conclusion. It was based on his personal ability to command confidence. He rarely made a speech. When he did speak, he was brief. But few politicians of his generation were so blessed with the symbolic attributes that people admire in public figures. With Calvin Coolidge, Vic Donahey shared something which mass psychologists call the common touch. People believed in these men because they reflected the people themselves. Ohio politics was brightened by Mr. Donahey's many years of service to his party and to the public. His death at the age of 72 is a reminder to those who remember his rise in the days of World War I and the years afterward that their generation soon will be gone.

A Clear Case of Murder

THE League of Nations, which would have been 26 years old this year if World War II hadn't killed it, is being formally interred at Geneva. On one point there should be no misunderstanding: that the League of Nations was murdered. It did not die a natural death.

It was murdered by governments that betrayed their peoples. No population wanted another war, but despots wanted it and arranged to get it. One of the first obstacles was the League of Nations. It was not formidable, but something had to be done about it.

The war-makers reasoned that if they withdrew, thereby signifying intent to violate the principle of collective security, other governments would be too confused, too cowardly and too frightened to do anything. That was what happened. The war-makers killed the League and not a hand was raised in its defense.

Now there is a new League of Nations with a new name. Collective security is being tried again. There are high hopes, not quite so high as the hopes of 1919 and thereafter, but high enough to seem exalted beyond any possibility of challenge. This time the governments are not going to betray their peoples. This time there will be no war-makers, only peace-makers. The League of Nations is dead, long live the League of Nations.

Holding the Line

CONGRESSMEN, who have been urged by a quintet of executive spokesmen to hold the line against inflation, must be as puzzled as the congressmen's constituents about this whole credo of holding the line.

The way it works is that congressmen are asked to take responsibility for legislation they know is going to be unpopular, but while they are "holding the line" at the risk of their political welfare executive agencies are making bulges in the line for the sake of their political welfare. The breakdowns in national stabilization that are threatening to cause uncontrollable inflation are not due to anything that congress has or hasn't done, but to the executive department's efforts to give everyone what he wants.

This is the third anniversary of the hold-the-line policy, under which wage earners have scored consistent increases in hourly rates and take-home pay. It is the third anniversary of a talking point which has concealed billions paid out in subsidies and largely is concealing general price increases granted by executive order to compensate for general wage increases also granted by executive order. Yet congress is exhorted by executive spokesmen to hold the line against inflation.

An air of unreality which finds spokesmen for the Truman administration saying one thing and doing another has become the chief characteristic of Washington statements. The only line they are really holding is the political line, and they don't seem to be too sure of that.

Petty Cash

ONE of the ingenious suggestions for financing the war—by voluntary contributions, instead of bonds serviced out of future public income—has been applied literally, if accidentally, by the holders of $23,000,000 worth of savings bonds which have matured and $13,300,000 worth of World War I securities never redeemed.

Out of the billions of dollars' worth of bonds sold for World War II, many millions will accrue to the treasury by default. While relatively they will be petty cash, they will embody a possibility that has intrigued many students of public finance. With debt service now costing taxpayers more than a billion dollars a year, they may comprehend that in the long run it would be cheaper to pay as they go.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

Some Errors Made in Evaluating President's Speech.

WASHINGTON, April 10—Mr. Truman has a faculty of making the sensational appear to be commonplace. His Army day dictum was popularly (and erroneously) written off as a re-hash of his old policies. The people thought his fear of a Mid-East war-break was calculated to build up wind pressure for war department appropriations which will be coming along in a few weeks (the budget is now working on the figures.) Congressmen surmised he was trying to crowd them into action on his unification, draft and youth bills which have been lagging. The Republicans criticized him a little on this, but his Democratic leaders did not comment.

The President intended his speech to be more than this. Newsmen were tipped privately in advance that it would be most important. All radio networks were lined up to carry it as a major address.

It was, in fact, a declaration of a strong new foreign policy, which could be summed up, as one official recently quoted in this column summed it up, in one sentence: "If we are going to protect small nations, we had better start protecting them."

Demands Respect

In the face of Russian revolutionary progress in Iran, and its threats against Turkey and Iraq, the President demanded respect for "the sovereignty and integrity of the countries of the Near and Middle East" against "coercion or penetration." On that very day, the government, people and press of Turkey were shouting high about the arrival of the U. S. battleship Missouri in Turkey with the body of their late ambassador. Turkey well knows she cannot resist threats of Russian penetration without the American navy, and she saw the big Missouri in that light, and only secondary as a good-will funeral ship.

The President spoke repeatedly of the "responsibility" of our army to protect the "nations which are not strong enough individually or collectively to withstand powerful aggression." While he urged "reconciliation" through UN, he mentioned the subject in connection with Army maintenance. The bristling connection may have escaped its proper importance in congress, and with the public at large, but it must have been properly measured in Moscow (where we are now represented by Eisenhower's trusted and efficient chief of staff from the European invasion as ambassador) and in other diplomatic quarters.

Frankly, there are some congressmen who think we should come to our strongest possible grip with Moscow right now. "We had better get it over with," they can be heard to say privately. Mr. Truman's new policy seems to leave this up to the Russians. Moscow can decide whether to press its advertised demands upon nearby nations now, and test Mr. Truman's proclamation of our "responsibility," or wait until affairs quiet down in coming months or years, and then proceed to accomplish objectives which she has announced. Personally I think, if she is faced with firmness, she will wait, but that is not the important thing. The steps already taken provide Russia must choose.

Army Program

As for the army program of the President, congress and the public more accurately evalued it. "Universal military training" is not really a military program. It is more like a universal CCC. It has no more connection with defense of our newly proclaimed "responsibilities" than national health or physical exercise is connected with national defense. The war department does not class it with appropriations, unification and the draft as primary military matters. Congress will not pass it. The Army has refused to work up a democratic program of training through colleges and National Guard, (although it has some excellent National Guard air training plans) and the issue will remain stalemated on this plane until some one gives.

Unification is vitally needed for defense. But the people Mr. Truman should see on this subject are the navy admirals. They are the only forces standing in way of adoption of his unification program. He has held some private sessions with interested senators at the White House lately and his bill may be reported out. But if he wants it promptly, all he needs to do is pull a "stop" on the old navy top crowd. Otherwise, they will delay it.

The draft will be extended, although congress hates to vote it in an election year. The Army has rather convincing figures to prove there is no other way to get policing replacements.

Grounds for Excommunication?

The difficulties which former servicemen are experiencing in making the transition back to civilian life are almost unbelievable.

In Kansas, a returned Army chaplain preached his first sermon out of uniform—and didn't take up collection.

The startled congregation couldn't make up its mind whether it was just an oversight or the materialization of the long-heralded free salvation.

Not take up a collection? This was some strange and unorthodox doctrine.

Not take up a collection? It was as if John L. Lewis had demanded a decrease in pay for his mine workers.

It developed, of course, that he'd merely forgotten. What could you expect after so long in the Army where everything was government issued?

Discharges need more preparation for the readjustment to the rigors of civilian life. Chaplains must be taught the new watchword: "Praise the Lord and pass the collection plates."

Japanese War Prisoners Write Official Secrets.

By DUANE HENNESSY

TOKYO—Upper crust Japanese are putting their secrets into thousands of pages of writing as they await their war crimes trials.

"They're the writingest bunch of people I've ever seen," said Col. Robert M. Hardy of Yakima, Wash., commandant of grim Sugamo prison. "They're at it from morning until night."

The men of erstwhile Japanese conquest — ex-Premier Hideki Tojo, Lt. Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, chief Tojo, Lt. Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, chief 1932 and former premier and the rest—are preparing their defenses against Allied charges of dragging the world into the Pacific war.

Hardy said the approach of the trials has no apparent effect on the daily lives of the prisoners. Their day begins at 6 a. m., lights go out at 10 p. m. Each man cleans his own cell, helps clean the cell blocks and obtains his food in a chow line.

The pinup girl of the prison currently is Lana Turner, because her picture was the cover on a screen magazine just distributed.

"Most of the prisoners can't read English," Hardy explained, "but give them one of those magazines and they spend all of their spare time going through it from cover to cover. Almost all have Japanese-English dictionaries and they have a great time trying to figure out words and sentences. But most of all they like to look at pictures—like Lana's."

A separate cell block contains former prison camp commanders and guards convicted of atrocities by U. S. Eighth Army war crimes trial commissions in Yokohama. Already five are in the death row.

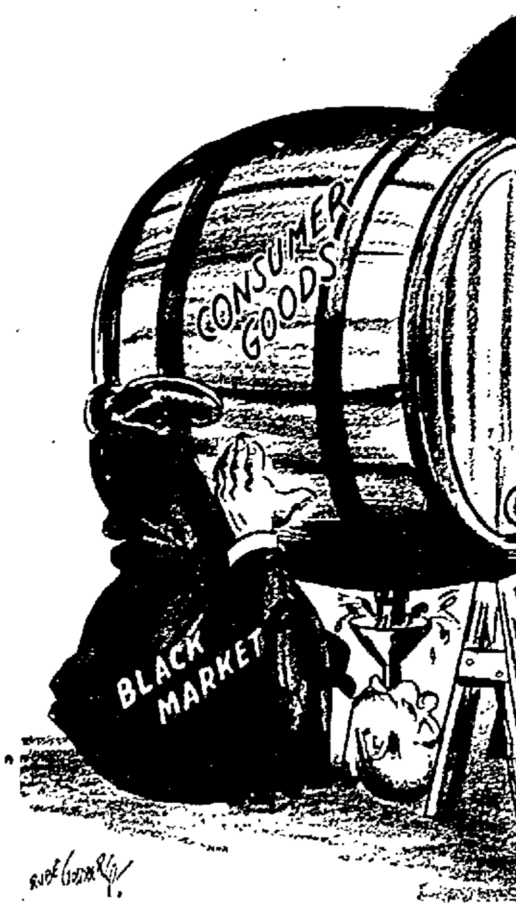
DRAINED OFF



—— Truman's First Year ——

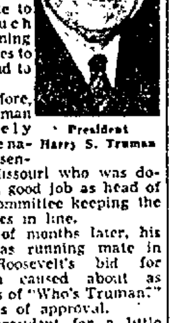
Cabinet Bare of Leftovers

By JACK STINNETT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, April 10—At 7.09 p. m., April 12, 1945, while a stunned nation still was trying to absorb the shocking news of the death of President Roosevelt, Harry S. Truman became President of the United States.

The drama of that fact was swallowed up in the tragedy of the moment.

Few men in our history have been so rapidly catapulted to such political heights, even by the death in office of our Chief Executive. Certainly none with so meager a political administrative background has ever been asked by fate to shoulder such overwhelming responsibilities to his nation and to the world.



President Harry S. Truman

A year before, Harry S. Truman was vaguely known to the nation as that senator from Missouri who was doing a darned good job as head of the senate committee keeping the war industries in line.

A couple of months later, his nomination as running mate in President Roosevelt's bid for fourth term caused about as many queries of "Who's Truman?" as statements of approval.

As vice president for a little more than three months, he was no bumbling Throttlebottom, but neither did he show any promise of political strength or administrative wisdom.

Looking back beyond his senatorial years, his background was no different from that of a few million other modestly successful Americans. In fact, it was more meager than most in accomplishment until he found his place in the senate.

This then was the man who stepped into the presidency while the United States was still fighting a global war on two fronts with a vast industry totally committed to all-out wartime production.

The Way Matters Stood

Politically it was a time when congress, except on matters of foreign policy, had little love for the administration. Republicans were confident that Roosevelt would never run again and that the Democrats could bring forward no man who could beat them in 1948. They were just marking time, lining up with insurgent Democrats whenever possible, to make the New Deal domestic program look sick.

Yet no man ever took over as chief executive with more wholehearted support of the nation.

And in the weeks that followed, President Truman delighted the nation. Moving cautiously but with a firmness that measured up to the responsibilities heaped upon him, he marched out to carry on the program, foreign, domestic and military that he had inherited.

At the end of his first year in office, Mr. Truman has made almost a clean sweep of Roosevelt's wartime cabinet.

There is only one cabinet member left who has been identified with the New Deal from the beginning—Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace, who presumably can, and will string along as long as he wishes with the Truman administration. There is one other who was in the cabinet when Roosevelt died—Navy Secretary James Forrestal—and it's common talk that he may be retiring soon.

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and Treasury's Fred M. Vinson had been given positions of great trust by President Roosevelt, of course, but both were known rather as good Democrats than as good New Dealers. Both served President Roosevelt well, but it wasn't the kind of service that would lay their loyalty to President Truman open to question.

Truman Selections

The appointments of Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, of Labor Secretary Lewis B. Schwellenbach, of Interior Secretary James A. Krug, of Agriculture's Clinton P. Anderson, of Attorney General Tom C. Clark, are all purely Truman appointments, even if they did serve the administration before.

Gone now are Harold L. Ickes, Frances Perkins, Jesse Jones and Henry Morgenthau who rose so high in the Roosevelt regime. With the exception of Jones, who came out second best in his feud with Wallace, all these were with the late President from first to last.

Names like Joseph W. Snyder (Reconversion), W. Stuart Symington (Surplus Property), Paul Porter (OPA), George E. Allen (RFC), Wilson W. Wyatt (Housing) were all virtually unknown a year ago. The name of Gen. Omar N. Bradley wasn't unknown, of course, but he was emphatically the Truman selection to build a new streamlined machine on the creaky chassis of the Veterans Administration.

It certainly is too early to tell yet what this sweeping change in the Chief Executive's official family will mean. Perhaps at the end of the second Truman year, its effect can be predicted.

First of Three Articles

Now, it can only be said that without even a change of party, there are more new faces in government, more new voices crying out new orders from the top, than have been seen or heard here in 14 years.

Certain to be important too is the fact that the Republicans who had their political guns trained on so many old familiar targets will now have to realign their sights.

(Next article: Truman and congress.)

The entire New York City transit system carries seven and a half million riders on an average weekday.

Pakistan

Americans who like to make offhand judgments about British rule in India are being invited unofficially by the English to give the problem of pakistan their attention.

Pakistan signifies the drive to set up a separate Moslem state in India, in recognition of the apparently irreconcilable religious differences between Mohammedans and Hindus.

It is not a question of giving India its independence that statesmen are considering, but a question of how to make the Indians stand together. The proposal to submerge India's Moslem minority in the Hindu majority, trusting the Hindus to be fair, has been rejected by the leaders of the Indian Moslem league. In the only previous experiment in unification, following the elections of 1937, Hindus won a majority and immediately affronted Mohammedans by riding roughshod over their minority rights.

On the other hand, the proposal for a separate Mohammedan state alarms the Hindus because in it they would be a minority and subject to the same high-handed policies which have persuaded the Moslems that Indian unity on Hindu terms would be intolerable.

GI's Leaving

NAPLES—The Allies have given Naples back to the Italians. The mass exodus of nearly all military installations which began early in March has stripped this noisy, smelly port city of its military atmosphere.

Until recently Naples looked like a military encampment, with army trucks and jeeps forcing pedestrians to scurry for safety. Khaki-clad GIs and British Tommies once occupied all the choice spots in town.

The GI, who whistled at signorinas and shouted "mama mia," sold his PX cigarets, bought cameos, and forced every one to speak his language, now has become a memory to the easy-going Neopolitans. An American uniform has become almost an oddity.

The British also are pulling out. The Royal Navy has left historic Fort dell' Ovo after more than two years occupation, leaving only a small number of personnel on Santa Lucia island.

Elliott and Faye on the Radio

ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT and his wife Faye will presently do one of those across-the-table breakfast or lunch dialogues on the radio. —News Item.

Faye.—Well, darling, here we are, one more couple chatting chummily over the table to the great unseen audience.

Elliott.—Remember away back when it was a novelty?

Faye.—Now Elliott at least it's up to us to regard it as something not too overdone!

Elliott.—Sorry, dear. Isn't it lovely up here at Hyde Park?

Faye.—They changed that idea of calling it "With Elliott and Faye at Hyde Park," honey. We're doing this without special locale.

Elliott.—Gosh, I've forgotten my lines.

Faye.—There are no lines. I just say whatever comes into my head and you say whatever comes in yours and trust to luck.

Elliott.—Just be natural, eh? I'll start off by asking if you enjoyed the Broadway opening last night.

Faye.—Wasn't it wonderful?

Elliott.—I wouldn't know—I wasn't there.

Faye.—Neither was I. By the way, did you hear the latest gossip?... Who do you suppose is Reno bound?

Elliott.—Who isn't? Say, did you hear about the last fight at the Stork Club?

Faye.—What makes you think it's the last?

Elliott.—This is where I put in a commercial isn't it?

Faye.—There are no commercials yet. We're in the market for a sponsor.

Elliott.—All I hope is that it's not a dog biscuit manufacturer.

Faye.—And it had better not be an air transportation company. Say, Elliott, did you read about that rocket that can travel 3,000 miles in a few hours?

Elliott.—How mother will envy that!

Faye.—By the way, how is your mother?

Elliott.—It's not so much HOW as WHERE!

Faye.—I wish I had her vitality, her gusto, her interests in everything.

Elliott.—So does she. Oh, say, Faye did you go to the opening of the circus.

Faye.—Yes. Wasn't it wonderful? I love elephants. Do you?

Elliott.—Didn't I once ship you one by army transport?

Faye.—That wasn't an elephant.

Elliott.—It seemed so after reading the newspapers!

(There is an interval where canary birds sing)

Faye.—Hark! It's Fala!

Elliott.—No, Fala has changed, but not that much!

Faye.—Elliott, isn't the forsythia beautiful this spring?

Elliott.—Exquisite!

Faye.—So bright and cheering....

Elliott.—Exquisite!

Faye.—So springlike and gay....

Elliott.—Exquisite!

Faye.—You said exquisite before.

Elliott.—I have said it before and I say it again and again and again.

(There is the prattle of a baby)

Faye.—Ah, little Junior!

Elliott.—We have no little junior.

(The canaries sing again)

Faye.—(radiantly) Tell that doorman not to bother about getting a taxi if its that difficult!

Announcer.—This is the spot where we bring on a dog to heighten the mood of home and fireside.

Elliott. (nervously)—What kind of a dog?

Announcer.—A nice big dog.

Elliott.—Over my dead body!

Nine young University of Penn scientists came out with an indignant squawk over the fact that a book written by them on nuclear energy has been submitted to the War Department to make certain any parts that might reveal secrets of the atomic bomb. "Scientists are opposed to any kind of thought-censorship," declares a spokesman. Fiddledee and fiddlesticks! Scientists, we assume, are also opposed to atomic bombs falling on the heads of their families, friends and neighbors through a leak of data to an enemy nation. Or are we wrong there, boys?

Scooping the Experts

By TRUMAN TWILL

The high-foreheads who figure out these things had better get busy on this one—quick.

There are droves of little people in the United States who own cheap automobiles. They bought these before the war, turning in theid old car as a down payment and dividing the balance due in 12, maybe 18, monthly payments.

During the war these little people—homo sap Americanus—have been dreaming about getting another cheapie come postwar peace and prosperity. They would turn in the old go-devil for the down payment and pay off the balance in monthly installments, just like old times.

According to figure fiends who run up statistics to prove anything that needs to be proved, it was going to work out that way because Mr. and Mrs. Sappo had put enough in the sock and War Bonds to give them financial room to move around in. They would buy not only automobiles but all kinds of household gadgets, with their wartime savings. They were going to be in the bucks, predicted the figure fiends. The United States would be prosperous as the result of war's waste, believe it or not.

That bright and rosy prospect is fading like the bloom on a chorus girl's cheek in a shower bath. The financial room in which the common people were going to exercise their buying power is getting smaller day by day. Strikes have used up the financial reserves of perhaps two million of the nation's prime prospects. Inflation is milking the buying power of everybody else—with nothing to show for it. Higher wage rates and higher prices are a dog and his tail; they go together.

All of a sudden thousands, tens of thousands, perhaps millions, of people who thought it was going to be fun after the war to buy all the things they needed with all the money they'd saved are aware of the fact they'll be doing well if they can keep what they have. For the first time since mass production got going, car owners who had learned to call their jalopies necessities are thinking of them as luxuries. Some have bought their last new car, not by choice but of grim necessity of arithmetic. When the one they're driving gives up the ghost, that's that. Automobiles—new ones—are on the way back to a plushy status as luxuries for the rich and playthings for profligates.

This isn't a happy thought, and certainly isn't a popular one, but economists eventually will wake up to it and start screaming. Congress will consider it, Chet Bowles will pontificate about it, and there will be conclaves in hotel suites and directors' rooms. When that happens, remember you read it here first—as personal testimony from one auto owner who could no more think of buying a cheap car at inflated prices than he could have thought five years ago of buying a good car for what the cheap car now costs.

Wage Board Allows Only Part of Pay Raises in Boosting Costs.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 10—The [illegible] underscored its "[illegible]-a-break" description [illegible] new wage-policy Tuesday by [illegible] only part of a recent [illegible] justifies a price rise. [illegible] came from the National Wage Stabilization board [illegible] involving an 18 cent an [illegible] wage hike granted March 2 [illegible] 14 Detroit milk dealers. [illegible], the board declared [illegible] 10 cents of the increase [illegible] used by the dealers in [illegible] to OPA for price relief. [illegible] settlement ended a 10-day strike of approximately 1,200 CIO United Dairy Workers.

As a result of Monday's ruling—first of its kind—the dealers will be required either to absorb the eight-cent difference or apply to the wage board for permission to reduce their pay scale eight cents an hour.

Board Chairman W. Willard Wirtz pointed to the decision to dispel what he described as a general feeling that the government would approve for pricing purposes any pay hike paralleling the recent increases given in the steel, automobile and oil industries.

These approved increases all have been in the neighborhood of 18 cents an hour.

The dairy companies argued their 18-cent figure was consistent with the general pattern of postwar pay adjustments in the Detroit area, specifically in the automobile and steel industries. But the wage board held, with labor members dissenting, that the situations weren't comparable.

The cutback in hours worked and in take-home pay in other industries went "substantially beyond" anything similar in the dairy industry, the majority held.

Dutch Rabbits Raised by Marion Fancier

A popular spot for Marion small fry are the rabbit hutches of C. L. Hart of 589 South Prospect street. Mr. Hart specializes in the raising of Dutch rabbits. Although they are similar to other types of rabbits, their color markings make them more suitable for the role of the Easter bunny.

Those of Dutch ancestry have a collar of white fur, white feet and a white blazer down the face. They seem tailored to order as the Easter bunnies, who according to an old English tradition, fill children's baskets with Easter eggs.

Mr. Hart has 40 Dutch rabbits, 21 of them young ones. A former employe of the Isaly Dairy Co., he has been raising rabbits for the past four years.

News of High Life in Washington Jail Stirs Up Congress

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 10—Congressmen blinked in amazement today at lurid descriptions of what life had been like in the "big house," less than two miles from the capitol.

They heard that inmates of the District of Columbia jail had run business ventures from their cells, imported liquor by the case for gambling parties, and even entertained out-of-town models on occasion.

They also received further sworn testimony of prisoners being permitted to leave for business appointments in one of the city's most exclusive hotels, of "lavish tipping of sundry jail officials," and of government stationery being used by prisoners for their correspondence.

Congressional investigators stumbled on this story at the outset of their inquiry into the recent escape of two condemned slayers from death row—a jail break which boosted to 573 the number of prisoners who fled district penal institutions since 1933.

The fireworks on district jail life were provided by Howard B. Gill, suspended as prison superintendent after a series of escapes a few months ago.

Gill testified before a special house committee yesterday that the goings-on he related had taken place before he became superintendent but that he had obtained the details in a 100-page memorandum from an inmate. He asserted that his predecessor, Ray L. Huff, knew what was happening but "hushed up" the story. Huff, now district welfare director, denied this to reporters.

Kate Smith, radio's pioneer "first lady," soon is to reach another microphone milestone. It will be her fifteenth anniversary as a network star, all the time on CBS.

The day is May 1, the anniversary also of her birth in 1909. She started as a singer of the popular, sung, it often has been said, "just the way the composer meant." Now she also is a commentator.

No particular celebration is planned, other than suitably calling attention to the date in her broadcasts. In her Friday night "Kate Smith Sings" on April 26 she plans to repeat the four tunes she did on her first broadcast in 1931.

On May 1 in her noontime "Kate Smith Speaks" she expects to do a bit of reminiscing. This program is eight years old and running five times a week.

Nurses Hear Talk by Dr. F. G. Smith

Dr. F. G. Smith was a guest speaker at a meeting of the Seventh District Nurses association Monday night at the Federation Home. He showed pictures and related some of his experiences while in Greenland and England.

More than $100 was netted in the rummage sale held recently by the members and a part of the proceeds will be used as a contribution to the Federation Home.

Members of the district group are joining with the state association in the observance this week of "Know Your Public Health Nurse In Ohio Week," proclaimed by Governor Lausche. In his proclamation the governor designated public health nurses as one of the most vital links in the whole chain of disease prevention, the protection of adults as well as children from the ravages of epidemics and the formulation of good health habits.

Mrs. Jack Scheib was hostess for the Monday night meeting.

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDESEN, M.D.

Troublesome Irritation Ointment

Itching around the lower opening of the bowel may not be an indication of serious disease but it can be a troublesome, nuisance-making ailment and irritating to the extreme. Not only is it one of the most frequent of all affections of this area of the body, but occasionally one of the most difficult to treat.

Because in many instances it is impossible to find the cause of the trouble, treatment for the most part is devoted to the use of such substances as will relieve the itching. For example, ointments, lotions and the injection of pain-relieving substances or anesthetics have been employed. X-ray treatments have also been used.

Doctors Linn J. Boyd and Emma Bellows of New York have suggested using an ointment made of of lanolin and cholesterol with cetyl alcohol. In addition, it contained witch hazel, tannin and ephedrine. It would seem that an ointment of this type permits easy absorption of the substances and these substances in turn aid in relieving the itching. Anesthetics such as benzocaine and chlorbutanol also may be included in such preparations.

In a number of patients who used the ointment, relief was obtained often over a period of months. It was found that the patients who improved most were those who also had some form of ringworm infection of the skin around the lower opening of the bowel. Hence, it would appear that some substance might also be included in the ointment which would tend to get rid of the fungous infections.

Antiseptic Substance

The proper concentrate of benzocaine should be employed since an excessive amount will lead to irritation. It is also a good plan to include in ointments used for pruritis ani, as this condition is called, some anti-septic, substance to aid in overcoming germ infections which may be present. Of course, a physician must supervise this type of work.

In every instance of this disorder, it is important to have a careful study made to determine if some condition may not be present which aids in producing the itching, for example, hemorrhoids or perhaps colitis and diarrhea.

On the other hand, it will be found that in most instances there is no disorder present to account for the itching. In these cases, the use of an ointment which allows the anesthetic present in it to be easily absorbed or taken up and also deposits antiseptic substances on the skin, will be helpful in giving temporary relief.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. T. L.: What are the symptoms of mucous colitis?

Answer: Mucous colitis causes such symptoms as alternating attacks of constipation and loose bowels, some pain in the abdomen and occasionally nausea or sickness to the stomach.

A careful study by your physician is necessary before an accurate diagnosis can be made. A bland diet, that is, one that contains no highly seasoned or irritating foods, is usually employed by persons with this disorder.

Mr. J.: I have hardening of the arteries and constipation. I have been taking bran which seems to help me. Is it all right to continue taking it?

Answer: I see no reason why you should not continue using the bran if you find it helpful to relieve the constipation.

A. A.: Quite often the skin breaks open in the inside of my lower lip. What causes this?

Answer: This condition might be due to vitamin deficiency, lack of riboflavin or vitamin B-2. It might also be due to chaping or to some infection. I suggest an examination by a skin specialist.

GIRL'S FATAL PLUNGE LISTED AS SUICIDE

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, April 10 — Pretty, blonde Virginia Hepburn, whose body clad only in panties was found on a hotel balcony after a gay weekend, apparently had succeeded in a third attempt at suicide, Police Inspector Alvin Corrasa said today.

He ascribed to the 21-year-old girl, who plunged in darkness yesterday from a seventh-floor room to the balustrade of the balcony, a strange, eventful career including two unsuccessful efforts to kill herself, an escape from a hospital for the insane and arrests for intoxications.

Corrasa identified Army Lieut. H. A. Blankenship of Atlanta, Ga., and Bellaire, O., as the occupant of the hotel room from which the girl fell and quoted him as saying he woke and found her in the room, that she ripped off her clothes, threatening to jump, and leaped before he could prevent her.

The coroner estimated Miss Hepburn had been dead six to eight hours when the broken body was discovered by a passer-by yesterday.

Corasa said the hotel room was littered with bottles and that Miss Hepburn and Blankenship and another Army officer, Lieut. Steven Ondrusek of Binghamton, N. Y., had made the round of night clubs during the past weekend.

Candidate Talks on Party's Obligation to Veterans.

Fred J. Milligan, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor of Ohio at the primary May 7, discussed the responsibility of the Republican party to returning veterans at an indoor picnic and rally of the Marion County Republican Women's club Tuesday night.

Mr. Milligan, a former resident of Wyandot county, is a veteran of World War II and a former assistant attorney general of Ohio. He stressed the need for legislation to help the returning veteran and declared his party was planning such a legislative program. English War Bride Flees Cabin Life, Seeks Divorce, Job

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 10—A 16-year-old English war bride, who said she became disillusioned with life on a farm in Salisbury, N. C., and left her ex-soldier husband after spending only a day with him, was in New York today seeking a job—and a divorce.

The girl, Mrs. Evelyn Caroline Poston, left Salisbury last Wednesday and was found yesterday by police in a mid-Manhattan hotel.

Detective John Leffler quoted her as saying she left her husband after finding he lived in a one-room cabin with few conveniences. She told police she did not want to return to her old home in Cricklewood, England, where she was married last Oct. 20. Rather, she said, she wanted to get a divorce and find a job and stay here.

Leffler said Mrs. Poston told him she had been under the impression when she was married that her husband was a wealthy man. She said she had known Poston, a former ground crew corporal with an Eighth Air Force bomber group, for a year before they were married.

His retirement will give him more time to fish and hunt—his favorite pastimes.

Mackenzie Hails New French Blow at Prostitution

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The French constituent assembly has made the sensational move of approving a bill for the suppression of prostitution in metropolitan France, thus striking a heavy blow at one of the forces most destructive to the moral fibre of chaotic Europe, for the old world is experiencing a plague of sexual immorality and its attendant disease which far exceeds anything it ever has known before.

Immorality is a by-product of every war, but the Hitlerian conflict differed from others in that the evil Nazi teachings encouraged it both at home and abroad. The Nazi fuehrer taught German girls that it was a patriotic duty to the fatherland to have illegitimate children to provide more soldiers. And in some conquered countries the Nazis conducted a regular campaign of interbreeding, so as to introduce German blood.

DewittMackenzie

It was all as coldly calculated as that. And naturally when such a code has been accepted, outright prostitution becomes easy for dulled consciences. Thus we find that large sections of the populations in many parts of Europe have abandoned restraint and that even young girls who haven't yet reached their teens have joined the ranks of the professional.

France Leads Way

France is one of the first countries to take constructive action to deal with this evil. The move is all the more striking in that legalized houses of prostitution have been permitted since 1877 and there are now some 3,000 in operation, doing a business which runs into millions. Paris alone has 6,000 registered prostitutes, who have been responsible for increasing venereal disease.

The new law not only contemplates the closing of all houses of ill repute within six months, but campaigns against white slavery and venereal disease are to be inaugurated. Measures also are to be taken for the reeducation and rehabilitation of prostitutes. In order to make a clean sweep the law provides heavy penalties for cafe and hotel proprietors who allow their premises to be used by prostitutes.

The crusade which has culminated in the new French law was begun last autumn by Madame Marthe Richards, a Paris municipal councillor who won fame as a spy in the first World war.

Refuses to Quit

Mme. Richards said last December that people who were interested in the operation of these houses had offered her 1,000,000 francs (about $8,500 at the present depressed rate of the franc) if she would "drop this whole business." But she refused to quit, and now has her reward in the new bill.

France has made a wise and timely move, but there are many other countries which will have to follow suit, and quickly, if Europe is to be saved from a lot worse than that with which she already is afflicted. The moral decay has struck deep.

Now France has given a lead. Of course you can't stop such immorality by legislation alone, for moral standards must be restored.

PROGRESS REPORTED IN CANCER CAMPAIGN

Pledges Now Near $4,000, Committee Members Say.

Junior Chamber of Commerce committeemen estimated last night between two and three thousand dollars have already been pledged for their cancer campaign.

Holding their first first meeting since opening their drive to raise $25,000 during April, committeemen and directors of the Junior Chamber reported $500 in donations had been received and between two and three thousand dollars more pledged. Most of the pledges so far have come from clubs, organizations and individuals.

During last night's meeting letters were prepared for merchants informing them that a Chamber representative would call on them to ask for contributions.

Organization of the industrial and commercial canvass was completed and Robert Morrison of radio station WMRN was added to the industrial committee. Plans to solicit churches also were made and Rev. Claire T. Crenshaw, pastor at St. Paul's Episcopal church was named chairman of the church committee.

The local cancer drive is part of a nationwide campaign to raise funds for treatment and control of cancer. Fifty per cent of funds raised will be used locally.

BOUDREAU'S CATCH WINS FOR INDIANS

Lou Proves His Ankles Okay for Tough Season.

By The Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va., April 10 — Manager Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians has convinced his teammates—and himself—that his ailing ankles are in condition for sparkling performances in the American league race.

Manager Lou slammed his second homer in three games yesterday and leaped high to make a spectacular back-handed catch of Ernest Lombardi's drive in the 12th inning to save the Tribe from defeat in a 3-3 tie with the New York Giants at Danville, Va.

Boudreau, who suffered a broken ankle in a collision with Dolph Camilli of the Red Sox last year, took heat treatments for several months before reporting this spring. The young pilot's injury halted a Cleveland winning streak and spiked the Tribe's 1945 pennant hopes.

Jesse Pike, rookie New York outfielder, drove two circuit clouts off Steve Gromek yesterday and Johnny Mize tied the count in the eighth inning with another four-baser. The game was called at the end of the 12th to permit the teams to catch a train.

Vic Johnson, slim southpaw of the Indians, and New York's Monte Kennedy were nominated for mound duty here today.

Miller's home run came in the third after second baseman Lonnie Frey had walked and Grady Hatton singled.

$250 a game. That didn't seem enough to Johnson, so he went to Dan Topping of the All-America Yankees. Topping offered him $350.

Johnson went back to Ted Collins in Boston and the ante was upped to $450.

Things were looking up for Johnson so he tried another trip, and Topping went to $550. Collins moved it up to $650, and Topping came back with $750 and a $500 bonus for signing. That gesture put Johnson in the All-America League.

THREE OHIOANS LEFT IN AAU TITLE BOUTS

Hawaiians Dominate in Boston Finals Tonight.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, April 10 — Four Hawaiians, who abandoned their keen personal rivalries in the interests of team play, will revert to them again with lusty vigor in the opening bouts of the National AAU championship boxing semifinals and finals tonight at the Boston Garden. Three Ohio sluggers also remain in the running.

The Hawaiians are 112-pounders Yoshi Miyamura, David Buna, Baldwin Okamoto and Walter Chung, who have exchanged many a blow back home on their islands. That quartet swept last night's quarter-finals competition in the title tournament and, as a result, Hawaii is assured of at least one national championship victory.

The Hawaiian team, making its first start in the nationals since 1940, also placed representatives in two other divisions, Tsuneski Maruo in the 118-pound class, and Robert Takeshia as one of the last four remaining 147-pounders.

The Buckeyes are led by Charlie Lester of Cleveland, the lone defending champion in the starting field of 172. Heavyweight Lester appeared in danger today. Looming in his path was Fred Wermy, a full-blooded Indian from Oklahoma City, Okla., who provided the three-day event with its only major upset when he gave highly and widely touted Grady Welch, Cincinnati Negro fighting with the Hawaiians, a lusty beating.

Lester's fellow-Buckeye title hopes are: Wallace Smith of Cincinnati, fighting in the 118-pound class, and John Tucker of Columbus, in the 175-pound bracket.

Lester knocked out Jim Vaughn of Norfolk, Va., in the opening round last night to gain his semifinal berth. Tucker outpointed Bobby Voweles of Utica, N. Y. and Smith decisioned Ralph Haro of Hanford, Calif.

Seven other Buckeye battlers fell by the wayside in the quarter finals slugging.

Williams said the club will sponsor both professional fighters and amateurs. A boxing program is planned here as soon as facilities can be arranged.

Already signed with the club are Howard Hodges and Bill Scott, former Golden Gloves fighters, both of Marion. Hodges won a welterweight championship in 1940 and since turning professional has decisioned Jackie Young of Youngstown and KO'd Ray Howman of Ashley in the second round.

Won 2 Out of 3

Scott won a Golden Gloves championship in both 1937 and 1938 and has had three professional fights. He decisioned George Floyd and Oop Williams of Columbus and was outpointed by Billy Cruz of Columbus.

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 10—Last word on basketball... The top high school team in 13 states where they were rated by Dick Dunkel for the Scholastic Sports Institute last winter was Champaign, Ill.... Champaign, which won 38 out of 39 games, barely edged out Allentown, Pa., High by a fraction of a point for the No. 1 spot.... Don't ask us how Dunkel arrives at those figures. A guy who tries to rate 10,000 teams is entitled to his own methods.... Other teams that were right up there included Cleveland's Benedictine High, Iowa City, Ia., and Cliffside Park, N. J.... Dunkel, the S. S. I. and that well known 5 cents soft drink also operated in Indiana, Massachusetts, California, Texas, New York, Missouri, Michigan and Wisconsin. You'll have to ask them how your favorite made out.

Sports Before Your Eyes

Bob Kurland, who has accumulated seven wrist watches for his basketball feats, overslept his first class at Oklahoma A. and M. after his return from the eastern tournament.... "They should have presented me with an alarm clock." Bob moaned.... When President James Breuil of the Buffalo All-America conference Bisons saw an order for 100 footballs for the 1946 season he asked General Manager Sam Cordovano, "What are you going to do with them, autograph them and give them away?"... Maybe it was just Sam's way of rebutting Elmer Layden's crack that the National league wouldn't take notice of the AAC until "they got a football and played some games."

ERIE HEAD FORESEES 1946 AS CRITICAL

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 10—Robert E. Woodruff, president of the Erie Railroad Co., told the annual meeting of stockholders Tuesday he thought 1946 would be one of the most critical in the railroad's history but the worst part of it would be over in the first six months of the year.

He added he was optimistic about prospects for 1947. He referred to the steel and coal strikes as handicapping operations in Erie's highly industrialized territory.

Woodruff told the stockholders the railroads planned to file next Monday with the interstate commerce commission a petition for higher freight rates in varying amounts depending upon the type of commodity. No flat percentage increase will be sought, he said, adding that the varying increases would maintain rate differentials between the different sections of the country.

BODY WORK—MECHANICAL—LUBRICATION

How's Your Car Today?

Have you had it checked in the last 10,000 miles?

These few things need regular attention—

ENGINE LUBRICATION

CHASSIS LUBRICATION
Power required to overcome friction reduces power at the rear wheels.

ELECTRICAL SYSTEM
Condition of battery, distributor points, electrical connections, etc. affect engine efficiency and gas economy.

Service department will be closed Saturday all day for repairs.
